eBooks on Law at BiblioRossica

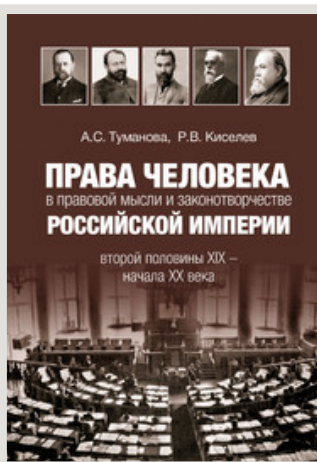

Death penalty. History and types of maximum punishment from the beginning of times till the present day Martin Monest'e

M.: Fluid FriFlai, 2011
978-5-98358-294-1
In Russian

Every year several thousand people are legally killed in the world. There are only few nations who have renounced the practice of capital punishment. The death penalty is still stipulated in the legislation of the states in which nine-tenths of the population of the planet live. Capital punishment arouses lots of controversy in the modern society, but it's pointless to judge about the philosophical, moral, religious and legal aspects of the problem, without delving into the essence of what is happening.
